intrinsicSIM announces the Market Snapshot program for affordable access to Engineering Software Market data intrinsicSIM and Cambashi announce the Market Snapshot, which provides affordable access to market research data.

The Market Snapshot program provides market data charts of user specified criteria using market data & research from Cambashi. Cambashi provides a comprehensive set of independent, objective, qualitative, and quantitative market data for multiple aspects like industry, application, vendor, or geographic data. The Market Snapshot delivers user selected graphs for a variety of market data, thereby providing a general understanding of market sizes and trends to support more informed business decisions.

The Market Snapshot program allows users to select from up to 18 different graphs related to market size, vendor/product revenues industry, and employment data along with multi-year trends for each type of data. The Market Snapshot program is designed to provide focused data access and affordable insight into different aspects of the Engineering Software Market with typical costs well below comprehensive market reports and data subscription fees.
